>Association Description:

The Romanian Employers of Private Investigators is the strongest established organisation representing professional Investigators from Romania with its foundations laid way back in 2011.

PDPR directly supports the interests of its members by providing services, facilities, providing information and specialized assistance.

The priorities of PPDR members constitute the foundation of the Patronage's activity, which represents, promotes, supports and defends their interests in relations with state authorities, legal entities - of public or private interest, or natural persons, including in relations with employees.

>Association Activities:

The main purpose of The Romanian Employers of Private Investigators consists in representing, supporting, defending and promoting the economic, technical, professional, social and legal interests of its members, informing and providing specific services to its members, under the law, contributing to the creation of an environment of favorable, competitive and predictable business.

In this context, the PDPR makes proposals to the Government, the Parliament or other competent institutions for the initiation or amendment of normative acts that can benefit both the members of the employer and their clients. Also, the PDPR considers the development and promotion of programs for the development and harmonization of specific Romanian legislation with the community acquis, through affiliations and partnerships with similar structures in the European Union.

The association holds annual conferences and specialized trainings for the continuous development of private investigators.

The next conference will take place between 10-12 November, 2022 in Alba Iulia, Romania, with the theme Limits and Perspectives in the activity of the private investigator.
